The Polar Express
Left Right
Christmas Story

A young boy who was LEFT in his bed to sleep tried to listen for the ringing sounds of Santa's sleigh, but RIGHT on Christmas Eve instead heard the sound of a train. He looked RIGHT through the window to see a train RIGHT outside his house. He saw a conductor standing on the LEFT side, which looked up at his window. He tiptoed downstairs and went RIGHT outside. The conductor explained that the train was called the Polar Express and was journeying RIGHT to the North Pole. The boy who had LEFT the house in his pajamas then boarded the train, which was filled with other children in their pajamas and nightgowns. They all sang carols and were served candies and hot chocolate by the train's staff RIGHT at their seats.

The Polar Express LEFT the town and raced RIGHT to the north past villages, RIGHT and LEFT through boreal forests, and over mountains, but the train never slowed down. When it arrived at the North Pole, the conductor explained that Santa Claus would select one kid who seems RIGHT to him to receive the first gift of Christmas.

The boy and some other children witnessed a large gathering of thousands of elves RIGHT in the center of their town. They were there to bid farewell to Santa Claus who was about to depart for his annual Christmas gift-giving journey. RIGHT then, Santa chose the boy to receive the first gift of Christmas. LEFT overwhelmed by the opportunity to ask for anything he wanted, the boy requested a bell RIGHT from Santa's sleigh. An elf cut a bell from the LEFT of one of the reindeer's harnesses. The boy placed the bell RIGHT in the pocket of his robe and all the children watched as Santa LEFT for his annual deliveries. As the train LEFT for home, the boy discovered that the bell had fallen through a hole in his pocket. The boy arrived RIGHT at home, the conductor wished him a Merry Christmas as the train sped RIGHT away.

On Christmas morning, his sister Sarah found a small box for the boy LEFT behind the tree. The boy opened the box and discovered that it contained the bell, delivered by Santa along with a note explaining that he found it RIGHT on the seat of his sleigh and to get the hole in his pocket fixed the RIGHT way. When the boy rang the bell, both he and his sister marveled at the beautiful sound. His parents, however, were unable to hear the bell and remarked that it was broken.
The bell still rings for all who truly and RIGHTly be

www.MyPartyGames.com